Programme (DRAFT - TENTATIVE)

The First Spain–Kazakhstan Forum is conceived as a strategic platform to strengthen bilateral relations at a pivotal moment in the international landscape. In a geopolitical context shaped by shifting alliances, the diversification of trade routes, and the growing relevance of Central Asia, Kazakhstan is emerging as a key partner for Europe. For Spain, this forum represents an opportunity to expand its presence in a region of high potential, fostering political dialogue and economic cooperation within a framework of stability and mutual interest.

Economic exchange stands at the core of the forum’s agenda. Both countries offer complementary economies with significant opportunities for collaboration in sectors such as water, recycling and green economy. The forum aims to promote bilateral trade, encourage mutual investment, and facilitate business partnerships that contribute to sustainable growth. Enhanced logistics connectivity and the development of new trade corridors between Europe and Asia further underscore the importance of this economic engagement.

From a geopolitical perspective, Spain and Kazakhstan share a commitment to strengthening cooperation within multilateral frameworks and promoting regional stability. Kazakhstan, as a key actor in Central Asia and a bridge between East and West, plays a strategic role in Eurasian connectivity initiatives. Spain, as a member of the European Union, contributes its international outlook and experience in global markets, supporting a balanced and forward-looking partnership.

In addition, the forum highlights sports tourism as an innovative area of collaboration. This rapidly growing sector combines tourism development with the organization of international sporting events. Spain, with its well-established tourism industry and proven expertise in hosting major sports competitions, and Kazakhstan, with its vast natural landscapes and increasing investment in sports infrastructure, can create strong synergies. Together, they can promote emerging destinations, foster cultural exchange, and generate positive economic impact.
